

November 9, 2009

At approximately 1:59 p.m., November 9, 2009, a report was made of a shoot being fired in the vicinity of the Roosevelt Towers, 901 Cambridge Street. Officers responded to the location and found one shell casing beneath the apartment window from where a shoot was fired. A short distance away from this location, police officers stopped a vehicle that had a single bullet hole in it.

No one was injured as a result of this incident.

During the early stage of the investigation, there were a number of conflicting stories. There were a number of individuals that were tested for firearm residue as part of the investigation.

Upon further investigation, officers identified the individual responsible for firing the gun from the apartment and eventually recovered the firearm that was involved.

The investigation revealed that this was not a random shooting, but a deliberate act.
